

Go To Gleaming Group

Most of us are lucky enough to have people we can rely upon when we need help; our 'go to' people will include parents to look after their grandchildren or neighbours who'll water the plants when we're away or that mate who'll get your computer up and running again.

One thing's for sure, you can never have enough 'go to' people, but one company that's well worth a slot on your speed dial is Gleaming Group, because when it comes to getting things, well, gleaming, they're extremely handy people to know!

Now, we're not talking about a spot of hoovering, nor a bit of ironing. Oh no, Gleaming Group specialise in tackling those really difficult jobs, the type that we always either put off completely, or those jobs that we tackle half heartedly, knowing that the end result will be a poor second to getting the job done properly.

Take the conservatory, one of the biggest investments homeowners can make. A sparkling clean conservatory is often cited as the favourite room in the house, with the additional light and the view of the garden further enhancing the pleasure. Pity then the poor homeowner who spends time in a grime encrusted conservatory, with only the smell of mildew and mould for company, and the roof used as target practice by the local bird life.

Along come Gleaming Group, who can offer you a total transformation of your conservatory, using their specialist cleaning equipment to make your conservatory look as good as new from top to bottom. Their deep cleaning methods will not only make your glass sparkle, but the brilliant whiteness of the original UPVC can be restored too.

Just about the only drawback about using the Gleaming Group experience with your conservatory, is that you'll then notice how mucky the rest of the house exterior looks in comparison! Don't worry, because Gleaming Group can again use their specialist equipment and cleaning agents to get the rest of your UPVC and also your fascia and soffits looking whiter than white. Gutters and drainpipes get the Gleaming Group treatment too and they'll even clear out the debris, leaving you with complete peace of mind.

The usefulness of Gleaming Group further extends when you learn that the company offers a fantastic one off specialist home cleaning service which is ideal for a number of scenarios, such as helping home owners who want to make a dynamite first impression when selling their homes, or for home renters who are at the end of their rental terms and are keen to retain their full deposit from landlords or even helping homeowners put their houses back together after the

And we simply can't finish this piece without mentioningthe dreaded oven! Quite literally, it's a black hole where all sorts of grease and burnt-on carbon exist and seemingly multiply every time you open it! Constantly in use 365 days a year, doesn't your poor oven deserve 2-3 hours of pampering? A Gleaming Group operative will restore it to a good-as-new condition, using special cleaning solutions which are both caustic free and non-corrosive and once the treatment is complete, the oven is then ready to use straightaway.

Because we're becoming increasingly wary about whom we let into our homes, we thought we'd devote the last paragraph to reassuring you about who you'd be dealing with when you call Gleaming Group. The business is an established Wigan company operating throughout the northwest in both the domestic and commercial sector, and its run by Jason Jolley, a born and bred Wiganer. The Gleaming Group are now Standish based and have a growing reputation for their integrity, professionalism and trustworthiness.

An Ideal candidate then, for a slot on your speed dial!
